

Deadly Earthquakes

Play the Deadliest Earthquake game with your partner.

- Divide the cards up at random, so that you have 10 each. Shuffle these into a pack and hold them so that only you can see them.
- Person A calls out one number on their top card, for example the strength of the earthquake. (Tip: the larger the number, the better – but not always!)
- Person B then calls out their number for the same feature.
- Whoever has the highest number wins both cards and puts them to the back of their pack. Do not reshuffle your pack; keep them in the same order.
- The winner of the round always starts the next round.
- Once you have played a few rounds, you may be able to predict which card your partner is holding, and choose your numbers accordingly!
- The winner is the person who wins all of the cards, or who has the most when the time runs out
